HTH WORLDWIDE PARTNERS WITH RADIUS TO DISTRIBUTE mPassportSM, A MOBILE HEALTHCARE TOOL

Washington, DC – RADIUS-- the global travel agency company today announced a distribution partnership with HTH Worldwide for mPassportSM, HTH's worldwide mobile healthcare tool. RADIUS is the largest network of independently owned travel management companies with 90 travel agencies operating from more than 80 countries. This partnership provides for participating RADIUS agencies to offer mPassport services to their travel clients

HTH developed mPassport in response to travelers' emerging demand to have access to top-flight medical care around the world. mPassport subscribers have access via mobile phone or the Internet to HTH's proprietary global databases of carefully selected emergency and urgent care services, contracted English-speaking doctors, health and safety alerts, and medical translations.

"RADIUS's focus on multinational corporate clients with global travelers is a perfect match for our mPassport service. We are delighted to be able to deliver our unique health and safety solutions to their clients and help keep business travelers healthy and productive as they circle the globe," said Andy Orr, Product Manager for HTH Worldwide's mPassport.

Patricia Locke, RADIUS' Senior Vice President of Supplier Relations commented, "RADIUS is always looking for the best global solutions that can benefit both its agencies and their clients. Access to outstanding healthcare professionals and services is paramount in today's international arena, and the agreement with HTH Worldwide will provide this access."
